Overall 4.5 out of 5 based on 2 ratings 4.5 I really like it By Mark Mcg, Android Police The functionality and features of this app are spot on. Overall 4.3 out of 5 based on 14 ratings 4.2 Great app, but... By Alan, Windows Central The only thing missing is the ability to disable sleep suggestions based on age. Unfortunately, that would've allowed me to skip some of the erroneous suggestions that have been made. Overall 4.2 out of 5 based on 4 ratings 4.2 Working good! By Pete S., Windows Central This app is simple and easy to use. It's only drawback is that it is lacking two features. The first, and the most important, is the inability to manually set whether the first and last numbers are total or not. This makes the app a bit less accurate in calculating "real" bedtime and wakeup. The second thing that is lacking is the option to manually set the average number of hours the app recommends for each day of the week. Otherwise it is a useful app. Overall 4.2 out of 5 based on 2 ratings 4.2 Baby Sleep Schedules By Grayson P. Working quite well, would recommend to anyone. Overall 4.2 out of 5 based on 2 ratings 4.2 Not all Ages By Eric H. My baby slept 5 and 3 hours and does not need a nap, this app reported

How to download from the Windows Store: How to download from the Windows Store: Baby Wants To Sleep is a free Metro app developed by the Windows Dev Center team for Windows 8, 8.1 as well as tablets running on Windows RT (RT). The app features two categories: sleep monitoring and a parent's lifestyle clock. The sleep monitoring category contains information on a baby's sleep schedule. The app asks a mother to name and record her baby's habits and behaviors when he or she wakes up, goes to sleep, and wakes up again. The app monitors and reports on how long the baby sleeps and when and how long he or she wakes up. The app also tells you how much rest the baby needs and when he or she is ready to fall asleep again. Baby Wants To Sleep -- Information How does Baby Wants To Sleep work? The app monitors the baby's behavior and uses the information to predict how much rest the baby needs. When the baby falls asleep, Baby Wants To Sleep informs you that you can end the monitoring session. Once the session ends, the app tracks how much time the baby spends sleeping and when and how long he or she sleeps. Features of the app include a sleep log which allows you to monitor and track your baby's sleeping and waking times. You can take a screen capture (a snapshot) of the screen anytime, including when your baby sleeps or wakes up. You can also take a screen capture when you add a note. With this feature, you can also use the screen capture to attach it to a note. You can create and manage multiple
