The Blind Of The New World is a visual novel by award-winning visual novel author Kil-ke (formerly known as Kill Rose), who has produced some of the most critically acclaimed visual novel games in Korea. A fantastic story and a unique environment set against the backdrop of Korea's fascinating 20th century history. The game's genre, "Orphans no Wana," is an action-adventure, time travel story where decisions made throughout the game affect the future flow of events and have repercussions. Based on the 17th century life of Kim Myung-woo (a Korean statesman, minister and diplomat), the plot sets out in a timeline starting from 1900 and moves forward to the year 2000. In this world, the Electron Cornea was an invention that blended the virtual and physical reality. This meant the invention and birth of augmented reality, and the beginning of a world shaped by visual perception. But for one young boy with 'blindness', a bizarre change is set in motion. The protagonist, one-time traditional school girl Ayaka, seeks to avenge the past from behind a screen of motion. Please read the info on the game's website, under "Development" tab. A: This is a pretty neat game, it will have a rough release later this year. I found a lot of enjoyment out of it, it did give me a feeling of control but still keeping me busy while doing my own thing. The game offers a bit of everything and is pretty well balanced. Graphics are average, sound is good. If you are looking for a medieval town builder, this might be something for you. A: Another similar offering, but for the iOS: Towncraft is a game about surviving. Build your own town and grow it with resources harvested from the surrounding forest. Keep your town alive by collecting food, hunting for precious resources, building houses and defending against monsters. Specifically, you'll be doing a combo of resource gathering and town defence. It's built on the XNA platform and runs for the XBox 360 and iOS. It's had a fair bit of praise from the people that've played it. Hope this helps! Streptococcal throat infection and respiratory illness in children and adults. The etiology and epidemiology of acute tonsillitis in children and adults is reviewed. Streptococcal infection of the pharynx and the sinuses account for the majority of cases of acute tonsillitis in children. Streptococci of Group A, primarily Streptococcus pyogenes, are the causative agents in approximately 85% of children with acute sore throat. Other Streptococcus species account for less than 10% of the cases. The major risk factor associated with tonsillar group A streptococci is recurrent infection in the genitourinary tract, reflecting the tendency for tonsillar colonization with group A streptococci. Streptococcus pyogenes causes a mild to moderate pharyngitis in children but is usually a major cause of acute bacterial tonsillitis in adults. It typically occurs in children between the ages of two and five years and it may occur with a severe sequelae. Streptococcus pneumoniae is a major cause of acute infection, otitis media, sinusitis, and community-acquired pneumonia in children and adults. Although this organism is the major cause of community-acquired pneumonia in young children and in those with underlying medical conditions, it also causes a substantial number of cases of pneumonia in previously healthy young adults. ports World of Motorsports (WOM) is an American cable television network based in Houston, Texas, which is devoted exclusively to motoring events. The channel is owned by Madison Media. The network's first broadcast, produced in conjunction with sister channel Speed, was held on August 14, 2010. WOM channel broadcasts are free-to-air in the city of Houston; however, they are received as part of a subscription package offered by DirecTV. WOM also produces specific programming devoted to its coverage of events. The network runs daily programs, weekly programs, and highly specific programs for racing at events throughout the year. Special events presented by WOM are periodically broadcast in "World of specials" filmstrip, with new prints coming out monthly. MOTORBILL was also produced for WOM for ten years before ending in 2011. History The World of Motorsports was founded by former Speed TV USA president Steve Friedland and TV Event Enterprises president Joe Capobianco. Joan Benoit Samuelson was hired as founder and consulting producer at the beginning of 2012. According to The New York Times, the channel added 23,000 new cable TV subscribers in May 2011, hitting their target of 100,000 new subscribers. This consisted of over 56,000 households, largely due to coverage of the 2011 Daytona 500 on the WORL. WOM was launched on August 14, 2010, as a 24-hour HD simulcast of Speed channel's coverage of the August 2010 Daytona 500, with plans to create a similar broadcast model for several events later in 2010. WOM's 2011 season consisted of the August 16-17, 2010 Trois-Rivières 24-hours, the initial schedule of events for the US Road Racing Series (USRRS). Initially, WOM declined to cover the USRRS series in favor of Speed's expected coverage. However, upon the announcement of a group boycott of the series by sanctioning bodies and series officials, and given the network's partnership with Speed, WOM agreed to broadcast two events slated for August 13 and 19. The World of Motorsports aired the first qualifying event for the 2011 Le Mans Series, the Teste de France in Nevers on August 16, three days before its broadcast on the Speed channel. As a result of a scheduling conflict in handling coverage of the season-opener of USRRS, the 2011 Daytona 500, WOM was forced to move two scheduled late-even
