InMOST: A Go-Between is a dark psychological horror game set in a private psychiatric hospital, a mansion that is empty of humanity, except for its inmates, and your sole mission is to fulfill the dying will of its last inhabitant, a brilliant and tortured writer whose last words prophesied the end of our world. It is your duty to find what he is referring to. Instead of answering the question, INMOST: A Go-Between leaves the answer to you. Features: • Unique psychological horror set in the confines of an abandoned mental institution • A sensory-rich 3rd Person exploration game with a gripping story that's driven by your choices • A variety of in-game objects and gameplay mechanics to help you with your investigation • a dark and sometimes disturbing storyline with a lot of different endings • A soundtrack of raw, experimental and emotional soundtracks • Meet other patients – including the main character! • The game's soundtrack can be used as a book of original music • Trailers / Artwork / Concept Art / Screenshots • No DRM • Full rights backed by the developer & publisher. You are in charge of a team of players. Those players must be recruited, coached, and properly managed. Every eSports team has a star player, some have a player who can be the best in his or her position, and others have a role player. You must find the player that will help you win. You have limited funds, so you can only sign a certain number of players. Depending on your position, some players are worth more than others. You can watch your players play their games in real-time. Analyze your players and make the best decisions. Decide if your player needs to be traded to another team, or stay with your current team. They could be the best player in the world, but if you're in the wrong position, they may never shine. This is all up to you. You have three main goals: Win the league - Each league you win will earn you a reward, which will increase your profile and the skill cap. You can use your profile to more easily fill in slots when drafting or using players for recruitment. Win the current game - Each game is a tie, and the winning team can customize their champion lineup. This can sometimes help you if you have a bad matchup in a tournament or a championship. Win every game in the championship - You can make it far in the championship if you won the league, and you can have a much easier time in the playoffs if you won the current game. In the championship, you can also sign a free agent. Now, I know what you're thinking - this seems like a lot of game. You need to read through all of that text above to get an idea of what the game is about. My main goal is to get you to take the time to read through a little bit, and to make the game easier to understand and get into, so that you'll want to play sooner. - Story: a classic shmup set in 1931, with the daring Avi and company chasing the rising Tiger Fighter! Avi and company have the new Tech Armor: an android suit that lets them shoot the enemies but also use those bullets to help their allies!- Single player is well balanced, with the difficulty going from the easy level to the hard one along the game!- Quick Game Play: the game is made for quick play, and that's why each opponent has different damage time, you might be able to win if you play your best shot, but if you're late a little shot can still beat you! You can also progress in the campaign by visiting the limited number of checkpoints! * The picture below gives an idea of the minimal and maximal time allowed at the checkpoints:Min Max - Versus Multiplayer: join the fun with up to 4 players! you can play local or online, it's up to you!- Variety: besides the boss level (where the boss fights have a different time limit), each level has a different difficulty. In the campaign I will introduce each level with a little story of what was going on that day!* Here is the difficulty set in the campaign: - Remake every 5 years: The game is being remade, check out the game at I made this little single player game for my upcoming game jam that will run from August 31th to September 5th. It is only for Scirra's user community and will be run live on a random map. The game is a test of three players against the computer, who must try and kill the king before the other three can. You get control of a character and must navigate the levels in an attempt to kill the king. As a little extra, the game plays with the fact that the king in real life is Jack, my dog. We can find out which is the best dog by playing the game. There's also a level where the action takes place in the woods and at night, which adds a bit of a difficulty. In that level, you have a flashlight to light your way but don't worry if you lose it because the game is so easy that there is no danger of the king being killed! You should watch the game whenever you have a spare minute because it's a very fun game. So if you like fast paced games with some laughs thrown in, this is the game for you. The Efficacy of PEG/PVDF coating as a superior substrate in continuous flow recombinase-assisted multiplex mRNA amplification. Novel nucleic acid detection methods, including highly multiplexed quantitative PCR, require a large number of reagents and protocols to perform effective assays within an overall time frame typical of multiplex real-time PCR. As a modification to a recently developed multiplex qPCR method, we developed a protocol utilizing a continuous flow recombinase-assisted multiplex mRNA amplification strategy. Continuous flow recombinase-assisted multiplex mRNA amplification is effective in amplifying cDNA from multiple target multiplex mRNAs within a single tube in triplicate with a limit of detection of 0.05-0.30 pg of transcript per reaction, with mRNA transcripts equivalent to 1-3 mouse brain cells. We further demonstrate that the continuous flow recombinase-assisted multiplex mRNA amplification faithfully amplifies cDNA from very low copy number mRNA targets in samples with varying levels of total RNA, including those from human patients. Continuous flow recombinase-assisted multiplex mRNA amplification provides rapid and effective multiplex mRNA amplification, allowing for potential high throughput nucleic acid diagnostics, with increased overall sample throughput.Q
