you will be in good hands.Q: Git - 100% file lost, but only partially re-committed We ran into a weird situation. A git diff for a file moved and copied around in the past was not updated properly to the new version of that file. So we have to do a "git show " again to see the diff. The file has now been moved and copied around a lot, and I can't remember what I was working on before I realized something is missing. The file is versioned at This means: there are a bunch of commits which are all meant to be the most recent version of that file. In some cases there were even no commits, or just a tiny commit. However, that file has been deleted and re-added many times in the last days. Each time, the commit will have no change, just a "Renamed.txt (copy)" and now no that file anymore (and it's not in our "Renamed.txt (original)" file). In "git status" there is nothing about this, and the file isn't missing either. When I do "git diff master...origin/master", I get output like this: Path: a_path.txt old: fc5591e8f8f5b
